Medicaid for Long-Term Care and Waiver Programs Aging Waiver - Medicaid Division of Aging and Adult Services: (801) 538-3910	Some people with special needs may qualify for Medicaid through waiver programs. In order for Medicaid to pay for long-term care, applicants must be financially and medically eligible. The individual may enter a medical facility such as a nursing home, or may be able to receive care in his or her own home under one of the home and community based waivers.	NURSING HOME Nursing Home Medicaid will pay for nursing home and other medical costs. Some different income and asset rules apply for married couples. An individual must meet medical criteria for nursing home level of care to be eligible for Medicaid in a nursing facility. AGING HOME AND COMMUNITY BASED WAIVER This waiver is a special program for members who would be medically appropriate for institutional care. These members are eligible for medical services that are not generally available to Medicaid recipients in community settings such as day treatment programs, lifeline and in-home respite care. To be eligible for this program, members must be at least 65 years old. The referral process begins with the Area Agency on Aging (AAA). A case manager from AAA must complete an evaluation of the individual's appropriateness for the waiver.
